Dear Mr Corbyn,

I wanted to assure you of the prayers and thoughts of the Methodist Church as you and your colleagues in the Labour Party grieve the tragic death of Jo Cox.

Those of you who hold public office as Members of Parliament have much to bear, more I suspect than most of us are aware of. All too acutely Mrs Cox's death serves to remind us of the risks before you all. As you know, such risks go hand in hand with the democratic process we are so fortunate to live under in this country. Amidst the natural sense of shock, grief and even anger I hope that the principles of our democratic processes will go some way to sustain us all in our commitment to service and justice.

Yours sincerely
Gareth J. Powell
