Net Zero Guidance

As part of working towards our goal of becoming net carbon zero, we will be focusing on various guidance and initiatives to help support churches. We have created Net Carbon Zero Guidance for churches as well as a practical checklist for reviewing your building(s). The guidance is broken down into 4 key steps:

1. Assess Your Building
2. Take First Steps
3. Make a Bigger Impact
4. Down to Net Zero

EPC Ratings

EPC (Energy Performance Certificates) measure how a building performs in terms of energy efficiency and can be valid for up to 10 years. These certificates are required for sales and lettings but can also be a useful starting point when reviewing a building's energy efficiency. Energy Savings Trust offers further energy advice for homes and has a Guide to Energy Performance Certificates

Energy Efficiency Rating
	Current	Potential
Very energy efficient - lower running costs
(92-100) A
(81-91) B
(69-80) C		73
(55-68) D
(39-54) E	37
(21-38) F
(1-20) G
Not energy efficient - higher running costs

The guidelines on manse provision (CPD, Book VII, Part 2.3) state that an incoming minister should be provided with a current Energy Performance Certificate, and that 'Circuits should seek to provide manses to meet a minimum of a 'C' energy efficiency rating.' Thus, if a manse does not have a valid EPC certificate (ie, more than 10 years old), then arrange to get a new EPC certificate. More information can be found here.

In April 2020, new legislation stating that all new residential tenancies must have a minimum EPC rating of E came into effect. In April 2021, this legislation will extend to require existing residential tenancies to have a minimum EPC rating of E. Click here to check the EPC rating for a property. As well, TMCP have produced useful guidance on MEES \(Minimum Energy Efficiency Standard\).

Lastly, the government have published a progress report for their plan for updating the Energy Performance Certificates. Click here to read the report.

Historic England's Guide for Energy Efficiency

This guidance acts as a starting point for devising an energy efficiency plan. It sets out our 'whole house approach' which considers context, construction, condition, historic significance and an understanding of all the factors that affect energy use. Checklists of potential improvements are included with their respective benefits, comparative costs and technical risks.

Guide to Energy Retrofit of Traditional Buildings

Historic Environment Scotland have published this handy guide for any pre-1919 church tackling climate change, and can be used nationwide. It looks at different retrofit options as well as material compatibility and building regulations. Although, it also mainly focuses on domestic buildings, there are some of the overriding principles can be applied to any church of traditional construction Read more here.

Electrical Vehicle Charging Point

We have received more queries about installing an electrical car charging point. Some things to consider are:

1. It's important to remember that electric vehicles only really help deliver carbon reductions when the charge points are supplied with renewable energy, either purchased from a 'green' tariff or from onsite solar panels.
2. It would be worth ensuring that the charging point can be used for a variety of electric cars, rather than being specific to one brand.
3. If it is for a manse, how easily could the point be adapted to other types of cars when/if this minister moves to a different manse?
4. Lastly, it is best practice to get a minimum of 3 quotes from different contractors.

Click here to read some other practical tips when considering installing electrical car charging points.

New Scheme for EV Charging Points

The Government has introduced a new Workplace Charging Scheme that will provide grants for organisations to purchase and install electric vehicle (EV) charging points – applicant can receive grant funding of up to £350 per socket (with a limit of 40 sockets across all sites per applicant). Click here to find out more about guidance for charities and small accommodation businesses applying to the scheme.

A New Eco-Friendly Church & Centre for Barry's Waterfront Community

Porthkerry Road Methodist Church and Barry United Reformed Church used to worship in two large traditional Churches on opposite sides of the same road. A vision that the two Churches could join together and move to the newly developing Waterfront at Barry was to be 20 years in coming to fruition.

The vision for the new building was to spread God's mission and create a fit-for-purpose, Eco friendly building, that would offer community-based activities as well as enabling local community members, whatever their background or beliefs, the chance to experience the life and care of our church family.
